After his military career, Clifford learned construction from his father. He also attended a trade school to learn barbering. This led to him opening a barber shop in Harrington.

In addition, he started a fishing business from the back of his pickup truck.

Clifford was employed by Diamond Chrysler as a Robotic Maintenance Technician. He worked at Diamond Chrysler for over 20 years before retiring in 2002. In addition to being a full-time employee, Clifford had an entrepreneurial spirit. This led to him entering the real estate industry as a landlord/property manager. The skills that he learned along the way were painting, electrical work, plumbing and HVAC complemented his property management business. In addition to his businesses, Clifford used his skills to help family, friends and many in the community.

Those who knew Clifford could count on him to offer a funny saying or clever response to make people laugh. Listening to gospel quartets was his favorite pastime.
