“ As a family we are collectively mourning in our own ways, and in these times we need to seek God not for all things, but in all things, because he knows better than anyone just what we need....as I struggle to deal with the reality that I'm not gonna see my cousin again....I reflect on the good times we had as kids and how he made me smile whenever I saw him....he would smile and say cuz I remember when I was a kid yes I remember when.... we would fight every time over who was gonna be the banker when we played monopoly. I remember when we would sit on the roof of junk cars in the yard and watch the sunset. I remember when we would try to out eat each other, both of us all skin and bones with pot bellies....I remember when we would intentionally try to make each other spit our drink out by just being silly....we were all brought up going to Sunday school and we all have a foundation in God, I know that Mike knew to seek God in his quiet moments and I pray to see him again one day....your family loves you and we will miss you dearly.....Rest in peace cousin.H White
