“ I met Rev Mae Etta at 100 Voice choir rehearsal at Janes Church in the Fall of 2011. She taught me about and how to sing Gospel. What a voice she had! Definitely not of this world! We became friends, and she helped me understand more about African American history. She went with me on some of my trips to take photos of and document African American churches for Legacy Day. She took me to Barratts Chapel to see the museum and her husband Roy's grave. She joined Chester River Chorale, and, again, we sang together. Knowing Mae Etta enriched my life beyond all telling. Every trip, every lunch at Luisas, every phone conversation brought warmth joy, insight and understanding into my life. They are all still there.

Many years ago, my husband sold the Moore family their first house in Delaware. He also invited them to attend our home church, Avenue United Methodist, in Milford. That was the beginning of a very long and precious friendship. My husband, as a high school counselor (worked 2 jobs), enrolled the grandchildren in school. Having entered ministry ahead of me, she became my unofficial mentor. Lessons learned were many. I offer prayers of thanksgiving for the many blessings of her life and service for our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

“ *Rev. Mae Etta Moore was my Pastor at Mt. Calvary UMC Preston, MD. She was not only my Pastor, Mentor and friend, she was a Preacher and a teacher. She was like a Grandmother to my daughter Niki and I. She taught how to learn the books of the Bible in a song. Rev. Moore, now you're resting with Bro. Roy. Sleep in sweet peace
Forever in my heart.*

“ I was blessed to have Rev Etta Mae Moore in my life from a young age. She nurtured me with the combination of sternness and loving kindness that only a grandmother that truly cares can give you.

We stand on the shoulders of her and those of her generation. They endured unfair treatment and hard financial times with dignity.

Grandma did not simply read the Word to you. Rather, she lived her life in a way that was a better example of Faith than your favorite bible verse.

Rest well, Grandma. A job well done. You are missed already

“ Rev. Moore was truly an anointed servant of God. Her light shined so brightly it could not help but be passed on to others. She met my grandmother a couple of times and even though my grandmother was not a regular member at any of her churches; she always asked about her whenever I saw Rev. Moore. She was a priceless gift to our community and surely will be missed. Get your rest faithful servant 🙏

“ Thinking back on how Reverend Moore could look at you and see your potential. I was told that I was on the PPRC Board, I tried to run from it but she wasn't having it. I thank her for it,I have been really involved in church ever since. I also remember how she cared for the youth in our communities while she was our Pastor.R.W.G. REV.MORE!!
