

Terrell Nicole Forbes

November 28, 1986 - November 21, 2025

We gather today to celebrate the life of Terrell Nicole Forbes, affectionately known to many who loved her as “Nikki.” “T” “Keebler.” Born on November 28, 1986, in Salisbury, Maryland, to Kaye and Derek (Ricky) Stallings.

Terrell’s journey took her through the halls of Wicomico schools and Therrell High School in Atlanta, Georgia, before she graduated from Parkside High School. But her greatest achievement wasn’t measured in diplomas or accomplishments—it was measured in the love she poured into her three precious children: Daphne Lipson, Travanti Lipson Jr. and Brennen Cornish. Her children were her heart, her purpose, and her greatest joy. The love she gave them will echo through generations.

She was a devoted sister to Dejuan Morrow and Arianna Stallings, sharing with them the special bond that only siblings know.

And she was blessed to have her aunt Rita Jones serve not only as family but as her godmother—a spiritual guide and constant presence in her life.

As an accountant for H&R Block, she demonstrated precision and dedication. As a hair stylist, she had the gift of making people feel beautiful and confident.

Even as she faced her terminal illness with courage, Terrell never wavered in her faith. She held close to her heart the song "God's Promise," written by her Aunt Terry. Terrell believed those words were written just for her, and they became her anthem of hope.

On Friday, November 21, 2025, Terrell was called home. Though our hearts break with her passing, we know that she now rests in the arms of God.

Preceded in death was her father. Derek (Ricky) Stallings and her grandparents.

She leaves to mourn, her mother "Kaye" (known as mommy) her grandmother Doris Saunders (known to her as Mom) her three children, two special Aunts: Rita Jones and Terry Skepple, and many aunts, uncles, cousins and friends.

As we say goodbye, let us remember her radiant spirit, her unwavering belief in God's promises, and the love she gave so freely. She may have left this earth, but she will never leave our hearts.

Rest in peace, Terrell, Your faith has carried you home.
