Obituary for Troy Lee White Sr.

Troy Lee White, Sr., also known by his friends and family as “Peyso”, “Fat-Fat”, “Baby Boy”, and “Babes”, was born on October 20, 1980 in Salisbury, Maryland to parents James and Tabiothy White. Troy took his departure on Thursday, March 27, 2014 at Peninsula Regional Medical Center. He was surrounded by his loved ones.

Troy spent his life in Salisbury, Maryland. He grew up and received his education in Wicomico County and graduated from Parkside High School in 1999.

Troy was many things to many people. He was a father, son, brother, nephew, friend and fiancé. He was loveable and caring; a jokester; he was hype; he was genuine. Troy was someone you wanted to be around because you felt better in his presence. He listened when you needed an ear and he always had words of wisdom to share, for he had wisdom beyond his years. Troy could tell a joke to make you laugh, even on your worst day. Perhaps most importantly to his family and friends - when Troy loved, he loved deeply.

Our loving Troy had many passions that he shared during his short time with us. He loved to cook; both at home and for a living. He had spent the past 12 years at The Angler in Ocean City, Maryland doing what he loved for all of the summer tourists. He also enjoyed music and had a gift of humor. Through his social media sitcom, “Guys on the Couch,” Troy and his co-star made people laugh and he shared his love of music through the Concrete Cartel. Troy enjoyed being around up-and-coming talent and was a celebrity judge for K.B.L.

In his free time with his family and friends, Troy enjoyed playing basketball and watching football – especially the Dallas Cowboys. He was always ready for an animated game of Dominoes or Spades and could play video games for hours. He had an appreciation of urban fashion – you would rarely see him without a hat and he was notorious for his love of watches. He was also instrumental in launching the “Vulgar Gang” clothing line.

Troy Lee White, Sr. was preceded in death by his father James White. He leaves his loving memories to be cherished by: his mother Tabiothy White of Salisbury, MD; four children: NaShira Taylor, Troy White, Jr., Makenzie Riley and Mekhi Smiley; three brothers: Wesley White, Warren White (Kate), and Nelson White all from Salisbury, MD; two sisters: Vera Polk (Baron) and Gail White, both from Salisbury, MD; his fiancé Treshon Nixon of Salisbury, MD; and many nieces and nephews; aunts and uncles and a large extended family.

“ It is so sad to lose a loved one in death, especially one so young. Death is mankind's enemy and Almighty God promises that He is going to remove death, sickness and pain forever in the near future. (Revelation 21:3&4) Please take comfort in the scriptures during your time of grief and may your entire family be strengthened and blessed.
